

FLOATING RESIDENCE

ULYSSIA

THEY SAY THOSE WHO are lost run away to sea, but in this instance, they are coming home. ULYSSIA is a state-of-the-art residential superyacht project that's set to transform the concept of ocean living. The 320-metre vessel, designed by Monaco-based designer Espen Øino and constructed by German shipyard Meyer Werft, will feature 132 luxury residences and 22 guest suites ranging from 166 to over 1,400 square metres. Owners will be able to completely personalise their space with the help of the world's leading interior designers, and enjoy lavish communal amenities including a Michelin-star restaurant, a gourmet food market, various lounges and bars, fitness and wellness facilities and a nightclub.

Outside, they'll find numerous sun decks, a 'beach club', pools, and a water sports club equipped with everything from scuba diving equipment to a submarine.

The developer, which is expected to deliver ULYSSIA in late 2028, has recruited partners to elevate its offering, including Chenot for the spa and EYOS Expeditions to advise on itineraries. The aim is that the yacht will explore will slowly explore all four corners of the globe, pausing for longer in each destination so that residents can form a closer relationship with local and communities. Programmes will also consider the interests of owners, crafting a global sailing like no other.
